Crown Point Ecology Center

From their website:

Recent Developments at CPEC

In 2010, Crown Point Ecology Center reincorporated as its own 501(c)3 not-for-profit to expand beyond the umbrella of the Dominican Sisters of Peace and take the first steps to being self-funded and supported by members, programs and donations. While the Dominican Sisters of Peace are still involved in Crown Point Ecology Center and the Foodbank Farm, Crown Point has emerged as a "Crown Point" in the area in terms of ecological education, organic farming and sustainability. In this new era for Crown Point, guided by the core values of community, sustainability, spirituality and justice, our mission is to demonstrate the practical applications of ecology and to connect spirituality, social justice and environmental protection.

A time to revisit this year's programming and share our experiences and hopes for LEWA in the coming year.

"The Roman orator Cicero had a few fundamental beliefs about older age. First, it should be dedicated to service. Second, the greatest gift at this stage of life is wisdom – which can and should be passed down. Third, one's natural strength in older age is to mentor, advise, and teach others. And finally, our focus shouldn't be on amassing worldly rewards like money, power, or prestige – rather, it should be on giving back."
